CAMPAIGN

PRESS AND TRIBUNE,

FOR THE

Great Presidential Campaign!

Republicans, you have now selected your candidate for the Campaign of 1860. ABRAHAM LINCOLN of Illinois leads the column of the Friends of Freedom. During the six months that are before us the PRESS AND TRIBUNE will labor incessantly for his election. From our stand-point in this, our State, we shall be able to present facts and incidents which, it is believed, will be of essential service in the great contest all over the United States. We beg leave, therefore, to suggest to the Delegates and all the Republicans now in the city, that they order copies for their respective towns and districts before they leave.

The Campaign PRESS AND TRIBUNE will give a full and complete current history of the Presidential canvass, including reports of speeches, debates and mass meetings. It will also contain the general news of the day, telegraphic dispatches, copious correspondence, market reports, agricultural and other useful matter. Nothing will be omitted to render it a welcome sheet, and an efficient champion of the Republican cause.

NOMINATION OF LINCOLN.

The tone of partial returns. After a succession of Presidents, who have not only been subservient to the interests of the Propagandists of Human Slavery, but corrupt to a degree alarming to the truest friends of Republican institutions, the nomination of ABRAHAM LINCOLN—honest old ABE—by the great Republican party, is a guaranty that the country, wearied and outraged by the malfeasance of office invested with the Federal power, desires a return to the sterling honesty and Democratic simplicity which marked the Administrations of Jefferson, Madison, Adams and Jackson. The party has not mistaken in the man selected for a standard bearer. Mr. LINCOLN is the very soul of integrity. In all his life, now extending over 51 years, there is not a act of commission or omission, by which his thorough uprightness, his exact conscientiousness, his perfect integrity are impaired. The fact is a guarantee that when he goes into the government as its Executive head, the corruption and extravagance which have made the two last Administrations a stench in the nostrils of the American people, and which are fast sapping the foundations upon which our fathers built, will come to a sudden end.

Mr. LINCOLN'S record on the slavery question is so well known and so clear that it needs no explanation. He is a conservative Anti-Slavery man, against whom no allegation of fanaticism will hold good. On and a part of the Platform of the party, he will agree, no labor to effect a return to the policy which has marked the rule of the wisest and most patriotic of his predecessors. Guided by the Constitution and the laws, in the interpretation of his obligations to party he will command the respect of the North and the South; and the country may be assured that if during such time as he may be invested with authority, there is an attempt from any quarter whatever to dissolve the bonds which unite the States of this Union together, it will be met by ROSS than a Roman firmness which never yet yielded to threats or frowns. That beautiful firmness and integrity of his life, which have made him a man of mark, will not desert him in his promised official career; but will remain the guides and balances in that difficult path which the people will command him to tread.

Mr. LINCOLN is untried in a merely executive capacity. But we have not the smallest fear that he will be unequal to any emergency in which he may be placed. That activity and strength of intellect which have brought him up from a lowly estate to become the head of a great, and we believe, a triumphant party, will be the anchor on which he and the country may depend. In this regard he is eminently safe.

We refer to one matter with pride and confidence. Mr. LINCOLN has, in his own section, never been a candidate for President of the United States; become he has to pledge to release, no promises to quit good. The opening in his favor has been spontaneous—the outgrowth of a widespread conviction of the fitness and availability. It has not put up a mind his future action. It has laid no clogs upon the free exercise of his judgment in all matters which concern the public good. It has not bound the wave of eloquence or factions by and by to seek their reward. He goes into the Presidential Chair, unpledged and free; and when President, his distribution of the patronage will be governed by the wants and exigencies of the public service, and not by the local claims of men, who may claim to have stood on the ground of LINCOLN'S nomination from the first. Such a man, with such surroundings, will be free from those temptations to lead him into the errors which are unfortunately so common with Presidents, and if he will but remember that he is the President of the whole people, and not of a party, he will be sustained by the whole people.

NEW YORK.

The exceedingly happy manner in which the Republicans of New York, in and out of the Convention, received the nomination of LINCOLN, excites praise from the delegates from all other States. Compelled by the power of numbers to sacrifice an eminent Statesmen to whom they were bound by the triple tie of gratitude, admiration and affection, they yielded their preferences with the grace which becomes men devoted to principles rather than individuals, and promise to the successful man that warm, generous and successful support that warm, generous and successful support which the Republicans of New York know how to give. Their earnestness for the maintenance of Republican principles, in spite of the disappointment which they unquestionably felt, is a tribute to the expressed preferences of Illinois, which she will be sure to remember. Mr. LINCOLN, fortunately, is worthy of the admiration which is due to exalted patriotism and to eminent personal ability and worth, and if New York has, to her regret, lost the man of her choice, she has gone with zeal into what if elected, as is surely will be, will win the affection and command the approbation of the great Empire State.

MR. EVARTS, OF NEW YORK.

The speech of Mr. EVARTS, of New York in moving that the nomination of ABRAHAM LINCOLN be made unanimous is upon every lip. The words of the eloquent gentleman will be found in another column, but the majestic grace and dignity of their utterance are not to be known to those who were not present merely to hear.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MR. LINCOLN.

Speech of Gov. WM. H. Seward.

Tuesday, May 15—Hon. Wm. H. Seward, Governor of New York, arrived in Detroit, this evening, and was received with the usual demonstrations. He addressed the people from the balcony of the Michigan Exchange, to a large audience. He said that he had come to Detroit to meet his friends, and not to make a speech. He had been in the habit of speaking to the people of Detroit, and he had always found them ready to listen to the truth. He had spoken to them on the subject of Freedom, and he had Biographical Sketch of Abraham Lincoln.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN is a native of Hardin county, Kentucky. He was born on the 12th day of February, 1809. His parents were both from Virginia, and were certainly not of the first families. His paternal grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, emigrated from Rockingham county, Virginia, to Kentucky, about 1781 or '2, where a year or two later he was killed by Indians, not far from, but by whom, while he was labori-ng to open a farm in the forest. His ancestors, who were respectable members of the Society of Friends, went to Virginia from Berks county, Pennsylvania. Descendants of the same stock still reside in the eastern part of that State.

Mr. Lincoln's father, at the death of his father, was but six years of age, and he grew up literally without education. He removed from Kentucky to what is now Spencer county, Indiana, in 1816. The family reached their new home about the time the State was admitted into the Union. The region in which they settled was rude and wild, and they endured, for some years, the hard experience of a frontier life, in which the struggle with nature for existence and security is to be maintained only by constant vigilance. Deer, wolves and other wild animals still infested the woods, and young Lincoln acquired more skill in the use of the rifle than knowledge of books. There were institutions here and there known by the flattering denomination of "schools," but the idea of education was required of a teacher beyond "readin', writin' and cypherin'," as the favorite phrase ran, as far as the rule of three. If a stranger supposed to understand Latin happened to sojourn in the neighborhood, he was looked upon as a wizard, and regarded with an awe suited to so mysterious a character.

Hard work and plenty of it was the order of the day, varied, indeed, by an occasional bear hunt, a not unfrequent deer chase, or other wild sport. Of course when young Lincoln came of age he was not a scholar. He could read and write, and had some knowledge of arithmetic, but that was about all; and as yet, he had but little ambition to know more of what was to be found in "books." His rugged and athletic frame, however, he had developed. He had grown to be six feet four inches in stature, was native and athletic, could wield the axe, drive the plow, or use the rifle, as well as the best of his neighbors, and was fully up to all the mysteries of prairie farming, and fully inured to hardship and toil. Since he arrived at age he has not been to school. Whatever his acquirements are, they have been gleaned up from time to time as opportunity occurred, or as the pressure of some exigency demanded.

At twenty-one he removed to Illinois, and passed the first year[illegible] Macon County, in active labor on a farm, when he[illegible] a fellow laborer, (called Hanks,) to[illegible] THREE THOUSAND RAILS, in the year 1830. It will be interesting to the millions before whom he is now placed as a candidate for the highest office in the gift of a free people, to know that he once managed a flat-boat on the Ohio River. The anecdotes which he sometimes relates to his friends of his maritime experiences before the introduction of steam on the western rivers, are indescribably laughable. From Macon County he went to New Salem, in what is now Menard County, where he remained about a year. Then came the Black Hawk war. A company of volunteers was raised in New Salem and the surrounding country, and young Lincoln was elected captain —a success which, he has since said, gave him more pleasure than he has ever since enjoyed. He served with credit during the campaign, and became popular. Returning to Sangamon County, he learned the art of surveying, and prosecuted that profession until the financial crash of 1837 destroyed the value of real estate and ruined the business—the result of which was that young Lincoln's surveying apparatus was sold on execution by the sheriff. Nothing daunted by this turn of ill luck, he directed his energies to the law, and receiving a few books from a neighbor, which he took from the office in the evening and returned in the morning, he learned the rudiments of the profession to which he has since become so distinguished, by the light of a tallow dip.

About this time the Whigs of his county conferred upon him a nomination for the Legislature. He was defeated at this and three succeeding elections, by triumphant majorities. While a member of the Legislature he first gave indications of his superior powers as a debater, and he increased, by frequent practice, that natural facility for public speaking, which improved industriously the opportunities that were here offered of self-education. From a position in the ranks of the Whig party, a position that was appropriately assigned him by his unaffected modesty and humble pretensions, he soon became recognized and acknowledged as a champion and a leader, and his unvarying courtesy, good nature and genial manners, united with an utter disinterestedness and abnegation of self, made him a universal favorite.

During his legislative period he continued his law studies, and removing to Springfield, he opened an office and engaged actively in practice. Business flowed in upon him, and he rose rapidly to distinction in his profession. He displayed remarkable ability as an advocate in jury trials, and many of his arguments were masterpieces of logical reasoning. They were no refined artificiality in his forensic efforts.—They all bore the stamp of masculine common sense; and he had a wonderful way of illustration, that made the most abstruse subjects appear plain. His success at the bar, however, did not withdraw his attention from politics.—For many years he was the "wheel horse" of the whig party of Illinois, and was on the electoral ticket in several Presidential campaigns. At such times he canvassed the State with his usual vigor and ability. He was an ardent friend of Henry Clay, and exerted himself powerfully in his behalf in 1844, traversing the entire State of Illinois, and addressing public meetings daily until near the close of the campaign, when he seeming convinced that his labors in that field would be unavailing, he crossed over into Indiana, and continued his efforts up to the day of election. The contest of that year in Illinois was mainly on the tariff question. Mr. Lincoln, on the Whig side, and Mr. Calhoun, on the Democratic side, were the heads of the opposing electoral tickets. Calhoun, late of New Brunswick, now dead, was then in the full vigor of his powers, and was accounted the ablest debater of his party. They stumped the State together, or nearly so, making speeches usually on alternate days at each place, and each addressing large audiences at great length, sometimes four hours together. Mr. Lincoln, in these elaborate speeches, evinced a thorough mastery of the principles of political economy which underlie the tariff question, and presented arguments in favor of the protective policy, with a power and conclusiveness rarely equaled, and at the same time in a manner so lucid and forcible and so well interspersed with happy illustrations and apposite anecdotes, as to establish a reputation which it has never since failed to maintain. Mr. Calhoun, leader in the Whig and Republican ranks in the great West.

In 1846 he was elected to Congress, and served out his term, and would have been re-elected had he not declined to be a candidate. He steadily and earnestly opposed the annexation of Texas, and labored with all his power in behalf of the Wilmot Proviso. In the National Convention of 1848, of which he was a member, he advocated the nomination of General Taylor, and obtained the nomination by an active canvass in Illinois and Indiana.

From 1849 to 1854 Mr. Lincoln was engaged assiduously in the practice of his profession, and being deeply interested in business, was beginning to feel his interest in politics, when the repeal of an ungroundly odious law governing the[illegible] of an unscrupulous aspirant to the Presidency brought about the repeal of the Missouri Compromise. That act of treachery and perfidy aroused the sleeping lion, and he prepared for open warfare. He threw himself[illegible] of the[illegible] of the[illegible] of the

The symptoms are numerous, and are of the nature of almost all other complaints combined. From this fact arises the very many cases where the disease is mistaken for some other, and so improperly treated. The first symptoms—indigestion, flatulency, loss of appetite, heartburn, headache etc., if neglected; almost a certainty that more dormant disease, and even the poor sufferer is a prey to gloom. PROCEEDINGS OF THE

National Republican CONVENTION,

Beginning at Chicago May 16th, 1860,

FOR PRESIDENT,
ABRAHAM LINCOLN, OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
HANNIBAL HAMLIN,
OF MAINE.

The Convention Adjourned Sine Die.

THIRD DAY.

The Convention re-assembled at ten o'clock agreeably to adjournment. After the delegates had seated themselves, the proceedings were opened by the following prayer, by Rev. H. Geer, of Chicago.

Our Lord, our God, we adore, thee as the Eternal, Immutable, Invisible, and only true God. Every manifestation of the universe; every attribute of majesty supports thy throne. Thou art our God, and we will praise thee; we do love thy God, and we will exalt thee. We come here, O God, for the purpose of performing a duty which we owe to our country, to the people, in their rights, in their deliverance from infringement which have thrust out them, and to the high degree of prosperity which we enjoy. O God, Father! God our Father! we commend ourselves to the wonder of our love, who acknowledge thee in their ways, and we do try by humble reliance upon their efforts to establish a free Government. Lord, we entreat thee with bold to the guidance from above which is necessary in the present crisis. Oh! be thine, infinite disposer of events, propitious, and be our Governor. And now, we thank God that thou hast permitting these things, and the people to assemble and so far be prepared in the object with such harmony and general concurrence. We pray that still to clothe thy servant, the President of this body, with the authority requisite for his official post, and we entreat that by being a happy leader in the labors of the day, he may conduct to a happy issue. We submit that, that assume future but we do it trust that thou wilt exhibit how lowers the body politic that not only here is an attempt in its progress, but wholly eradicated from the system. And may the pen of the Reporter bear on an intimate connection between that glorious consummation and the transaction of this Convention. O Lord, our God, hear us in Heaven and on earth, that we should not be unto Thee, but that prayer in our hearts before thee. We ask it in a manner and answer it, for the sake of our Redeemer. Amen.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The PRESIDENT.—Gentlemen of the Convention: The Chair feels in his first duty this morning to appeal, not merely to the gentlemen of the Convention, but to every individual of the vast audience, to remember the utmost importance of keeping and preserving order during the entire session—as much silence as possible—and he also begs to remind the gentlemen of this Convention, in the name of this Convention, that they will, to their utmost ability, refrain from applause during the delivery of the speeches of the Convention. I should suggest to the delegates that they themselves set the example to their friends who are not of their delegations, and by the best exercise of his individual capacity, co-operate with the Chair in keeping entire order.

The Chair has received communications, which he will lay before the Convention.

The Secretary read the communications, as follows:

CHICAGO, May 16, 1860.

Hon. GEORGE ASHMUN, President of the National Convention, Chicago:

Dear Sir—The delegates of the Convention are invited to go to Cedar Rapids, on Monday next, over the Galena and Chicago Union Railroad to Dubuque, thence down the Mississippi River to Fulton or Clinton, from all of which they can return to Chicago on Tuesday evening, or extend their excursion to Cedar Rapids, over the Chicago, Iowa and Nebraska Railroad, and return on Wednesday morning. Please inform the delegates that the Directors of the Galena and Chicago Union Railroad Company will carry all those who may attend the Convention and their families free of charge.

Very respectfully, yours, B. TALCOTT, Supt.

A DELEGATE—I move that it lie on the table for the present.

The PRESIDENT—The Chair has received another communication, which will be read.

The Secretary read:

NEW YORK, April 30.

To the Republican National Convention:

At a meeting of the Republicans of the Working men of the different wards of this city, Brooklyn, Williamsburgh, and Greenpoint, held on the evening of the 16th inst., at Union Hall, 193 Bowery, it was

Resolved, That the officers of the meeting be instructed to address the Republican National Convention, to assemble at Chicago, and to request the Convention to declare that no slaveholder is opposed to all further traffic in the public lands of the U. S., and in favor of laying them out in farms and lots for the settlement of actual settlers.

We see this singular condition of affairs, that while wealth in our own country is accumulating, while the means of subsistence and the comforts of life are increasing, yet with all these advantages, the compensation for useful labor is getting less and less, and the reward of industry is getting less and less, and the reward of industry is getting poorer. We pray that still to clothe thy servant, the President of this body, with the authority requisite for his official post, and we entreat that by being a happy leader in the labors of the day, he may conduct to a happy issue. We submit that, that assume future but we do trust that thou wilt exhibit how lowers the body politic that not only here is an attempt in its progress, but wholly eradicated from the system. ☞ Dyspepsia.—This is a very distressing complaint, and gives the patient more suffering than almost any other disease. In fact it is a combination of many complaints in one. The symptoms are numerous, and one of the latest of almost all other complaints combined. From this fact arises the very many cases where the disease is mistaken for some other, and so improperly treated. The first symptoms—Indigestion, flatulency, loss of appetite, heartburn, no doubt etc., if neglected, almost always makes some dormant disease, and soon the poor sufferer is a confirmed prey. When you must do all to cleanse the blood and regulate the bowels; do this with the "Mountain Herb Pills," and you can bid defiance to Dyspepsia.
Jaffrey's Mountain Herb Pills are sold by all Medicine Dealers.

☞ Public Speakers and Vocalists.
A NOTED CINCINNATIAN and public lecturer says of Brown's BRONCHIAL TROCHES: "In all my lecturing tours, I put Troches into my carpet bag as regularly as I do lectures or Bure." Public speakers, vocalists, and all others who exercise the voice, should never fail of using the Bronchial Troches. They surpass all other preparations in clearing and strengthening the voice, removing hoarseness, allaying irritation of the throat, and as a cough remedy are pre-eminent the best.

THE GREATEST WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.
Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative.
STILL ST. LOUIS, Mo., Democrat: Below we publish a letter to Dr. Wood, of this city, from a gentleman in Alton, which speaks alone any of the superior merits of this half tonic. Such evidence must have its effect, when from a citizen of Alton, who is so well known as a gentleman of truth, the Dr. needs no encomium, nor needs puffing from the press:
ALTON, MAINE, Jan. 19, 1858.
Professor O. J. Wood & Co.—Gentlemen: Having my attention called a few months since to the highly beneficial results of your Hair Restorative, I was induced to send for a supply of your sort own hair, which had become quite thin, and was fast falling out, and which were of gray character. Some three months since I procured a bottle of your Hair Restorative, and have the pleasure of informing you that it has restored my hair to what I had wished. I used it about twice a week. I have since procured another bottle, of which I have used but one. I am of opinion that the gray or white hair has entirely disappeared, both on my head and beard. I am now about fifty-two years of age, and I believe more soft and glossy than it has been before for twenty years. I am thus particular in stating my good will to the age of fifty-two years, for fear it will the same effect upon persons of more or less years than your valuable discovery. I am sure that whoever will rightly use, according to your directions, your Restorative, will be satisfied. I am a citizen of this city and a resident here for fifteen years, and am known to nearly every person in Alton. You may use this letter as you may make it above, with my name attached, as of your service, as I am willing to recommend the merits of so valuable a discovery. Yours truly yours, A. C. RAYMOND.
Sold by JOHN D. PARK, 124 Lake street.
WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.
Professor Wood's Hair Restorative has the wonderful power to lose the best portion of my hair, from the effects of the remedy fever, in New Orleans in 1853. I was induced to make a trial of your preparation and found it to answer as the very thing needed. My hair is now thicker and glossy than it has been for many years, and whenever I speak highly of its effects I am a treasure. FINLEY GORDON.
Sold by JOHN D. PARK, 124 Lake street. myl6-dtm
Dr. Wood—Dear Sir: Having made a trial of your Hair Restorative, it gives me pleasure to say that it has been excellent in removing inflammation, dandruff and in causing the hair to grow to the natural length. I have been troubled from my childhood; and also restored my hair which was becoming grey, to its original color. I can recommend it to every one who may have the same misfortune or accident to suffer. Yours truly,
O. H. WOOD & CO., Proprietors, 815 Broadway, New York. (In the great N. Y. Wire Railing Establishment.) and 134 3-last street, St. Louis, Mo. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers. 20

PURE AIR AND PERFECT
Ventilation secured by Henderson's New Russian Furnace which has double the amount of radiating or heating surface of any in use, giving a much larger amount of heat from the same amount of fuel. The fire pass through a series of tubes, and the air to be heated is in a wide space around them. All is warm before it enters the room; consequently no cold air is admitted. The fire is never extinguished, and the air is pure and beautiful as in the open air. Call and see it in operation at Parlor and Kitchen Grates, Chamber Grates.

A BRILLIANT NOVEL!
THIS DAY IS PUBLISHED,
EL FUREIDIS,
AN ORIENTAL ROMANCE,
By the author of
"The Lamplighter" and "Mabel Vaughan,"
One vol., neatly bound in Muslin. Price $1.
The unexampled success which attended the publication of "The Lamplighter" and "Mabel Vaughan" will be well remembered. The former of these novels has reached a sale unparalled by any American novel, except one, nearly ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND COPIES having been sold. The universal voice in the United States and in Great Britain has proclaimed these novels among the most brilliant achievements of the day in fiction. "EL FUREIDIS" will indeed excite a fuller development of the author's remarkable powers, a bolder flight, and a keener insight.
All readers who have enjoyed the stirring incidents and vigorous delineations of "The Lamplighter" and "Mabel Vaughan," the scene of which is laid upon American ground, will find no second in station to follow the author into the new and fascinating region of romance, which she has selected for the scene of her present story.

Having just returned from New York, where he has been selecting his stock for the past month, is making his rich and tasteful selections of a valuable entire stock, which for quality, style and working thoroughly conversant with all its sense, is prepared to offer inducements in the manufacturing to cater to the taste of all who wish a Genteel Garment, combining stylish fit with taste. Also deal largely in the best article of W. BIZ SHIRTS; notice this sentence, to which he invites the special attention of all who are in search of
EVERY PARTICULAR
JUST THAT THING.
We keep also every article in the line of Gents' Furnishing, from the collar to the foot, and in fact, every article that goes to supply our patrons with all the
NOVELTIES OF THE SEASON,
as well as everything in the staple line. An examination of our stock is respectfully solicited.
N. B. English, French, and American Fashions carved monthly.
